Preface...

The importance of research has a special place in life. A normal person and a knowledgeable scholar of a subject also keep researching on the strength of their knowledge and experience. Through research, innovation is universally realized, if we talk about the news now or talks to a conscious person; he definitely cites the research report. Today, despite all the flaws, there are many research-focused programs on TV and YouTube, which the students interested in competitive examinations make up to the notes (taking names of programs and channels is not relevant in this article). There is so much to say that even the common man now wants to understand the report of research. In this transition period, it is our responsibility that we should not try to make it complicated and try to explain it through the language of common people and people.

In this corona period, experts and researchers in all fields are engaged in research. This epidemic has affected all the dimensions of life. Today, every person, whether it is read, written or illiterate, takes care in the news that whether or not a corona vaccine has been made or if a successful trial has taken place. Actually, it is also focused on research. It is not possible to have the vaccine until the research is complete.

In every area of life, sometimes something new is added to the established Methodology or some work is done to achieve the result of exception. This Karona period is also going through that period of the medical field. The damage done during this corona period is impossible to compensate for the loss of life and property to the people. During this all, new dimensions are also added in the style of human life, such as work from home, virtual research, etc. During the corona period, research is not being done in the field of medical and technical but also on various topics of social science. In the Corona period, the world's experts on communication research did a lot of work. In the context of Fake News, the world also included that the Corona related news only contains information and many forums came together to rein in rumors, lies, A very meaningful initiative is going on. The Government of India also showed a press conference of the report live on time every day to avoid any rumors during this lockdown. As a precaution, the people who survived the corona crisis either helped people or were engaged in the development of this time and were also involved in the reading and writing of research papers and books. Some people in this period It also encouraged the rumor etc. As a result of this, we got to see events like Anand Vihar, Mumbai and Surat in Delhi. The background of the labor migration also focused on the rumor. It is a shame that this rumor spread more by the so-called educated people. And there was an elite community.

Based on the above events, we can say that research has great importance in life. Even beyond the importance of research, our approach should also be reflective and contemplative of some serious issues. In this way we can take care of ourselves and society to a great extent.

This era of Corona was a struggle for all, no one remained untouched by it. Many teachers, researchers, students and journalists have not given up writing and reading even in this odd situation, this issue is being extracted by the combined efforts of all of them. With all these authors also thank you that you too The clock engages in reading and study. This phase will pass, along with many new dimensions and achievements; we will also be given countless wounds. In the midst of all this, remember that time is the ointment that heals any wound. In this circumstance, we have to keep the knowledge within ourselves that the Alakh will be constantly awakened. Heartfelt gratitude to the people featured in this issue.
